COMMENTS:

There is an additional page in this issue in order to get all the group sheets in one issue. Next time we will resume the Georgia county deeds. This November issue completes 1982 a little late but now we are caught up. I think that in 1983 the newsletter will finish surveying the land grants of the remaining states and begin doing the probates, starting with Virginia. What projects or records would you like to see in the newsletter?

If anyone has sent queries that have not been published, they have been mislaid by me in these last confused months. Please forgive any such mixup and send another copy. We also want new queries (and repeats if you want to try again).

Enclosed are two family group forms. Make as many additional copies as you want. We would have sent everyone a packet of extras but thought the postage would be too expensive. These forms are designed to give lots of space for source citations. As you look at the group sheets abstracted in this present issue, notice how nearly useless the source citations are. They give very little proof of how correct the sheets are. So we designed forms that have plenty of room to document each fact. There is also a line for the place of marriage and death of each Lindsay child. We hope you will use these forms to send in your Lindsay lines at least for generations from the Civil War backwards. If you do not want to take the time, then please send the filled-in forms you already have. The newsletter cannot publish lineages unless you send them in. Incomplete lineages are perfectly okay. If everyone will send Lindsay group sheets to me, I can begin to match the lines and get the information into the newsletter.

I wrote some long instructions on how to fill out the forms, but Elliott said he could understand the forms better than my instructions. Probably the only two rules everyone should obey are (1) spelling or abbreviating the months--May, Jne, Jly or somesuch--and (2) documenting each fact.

The Newsletter seeks to bring together the serious researchers of the Southern Lindsays in all spellings of Lindsay to untangle the many branches into their correct families and thus extend the lines back to the immigrants and their British ancestors. Although the Newsletter is concerned with Lindsays born before the Revolution, it publishes information tracing such persons to their deaths, even if long after 1775. The South before the Revolution is defined as all the eastern U.S. south and west of the Delaware River. That includes Pennsylvania. The editor solicits any relevant material--from short queries, bible entries, and tombstone inscriptions to lengthy lineages and analytical articles discussing "stonewall" problems. The editor wants to correspond with everyone doing Southern colonial Lindsay research, so write:

Family Group Sheets At The Salt Lake
Genealogical Library

While the family group sheets in the Salt Lake Genealogical Library are not to be trusted alone, they do provide clues. Like any genealogy, the sheets should be tested and verified. As an example, there are several sheets submitted by Oscar Joseph Lindsey, 1615 Cogswell, El Monte, California. These sheets cite the Lindsey Family by Hugh Lindsey, and a History of Frederick County, Virginia by H. Dobbs. Can anyone say if either of these books really exists? I am especially worried that none of the standard bibliographies to county histories lists a Frederick history by H. Dobbs. Given the astounding series of early birth dates right down to the day, and given the fugitive nature of Hugh Lindsey and H. Dobbs, the worm of doubt sometimes enters my heart as to the veracity of these sheets. Can anyone banish that doubt?

To be included here, the sheets had to have a person born by 1810 and have some Southern connection. Sheets composed solely from 1850 censuses were not included. Where a birthplace is not known, the sheets often show a known residence, thus "of Wythe Co., Va." Birthdates are sometimes estimated from a marriage date by subtracting about 24 years for grooms and 21 years for brides. All the sources listed on the group sheets have been copied but not checked except in a few cases where incomprehensible citations have been expanded a little in square brackets.
